NOTES & QUOTES

Cheers to 70 Years!

Mr. Mullis' Letter

September 18, 2024

At this point, we are more than half way through our first nine weeks of school. The students and teachers are settling into the year and hitting their stride in their classes. A lot of the newness is wearing off as well. The students have a better understanding of what their teacher expects throughout the day. They have developed new friendships and strengthened current ones. Students have also created their routines for getting their work down; both at school and at home. All of these things are quality lessons to learn and build upon as they continue through the year.

With this "settling in", it can also bring about some poor decisions because the students are now comfortable with each other and their teachers. The important lessons we learn in life are not learned with just one instance. We learn those lessons because we are taught about it multiple times. We hear what the appropriate decisions or choices would be and then how to implement those decisions and choices. This year we have emphasized the need to continue reviewing our expectations and rules throughout the year. It should not be taught once at the beginning of the year, and then never addressed again.

We ask that you help us with the learning of this lesson. You can do this in two ways. First, please continue to review with your child periodically the expectations that I emailed to you a few weeks ago. This will help them to understand them more quickly. Second, help them grow in their ability to learn about rules by discussing your house rules with them. The more they realize that there are rules in all aspects of our lives that we need to follow, the better off they will be. Whether it is at home, at school, on the athletic field, driving, or in general society, there are always rules to follow. The earlier we teach our children about rules and the expectation that the rules should be followed, the easier their life (and yours) will be as they grow up. Children want structure and boundaries despite what they might say, and, yes, this includes junior high students. It brings them stability, comfort, and a feeling that they are safe because they know what is expected. When children are not given any direction about this, they are basically rudderless. They will aimlessly float through life because they do not have the map to follow.

Give your child the map and the skills to read it. This is one of the greatest gifts you can give them. If they know how to utilize this gift, it will give them order and stability throughout their life. Thank you for working with us on this important matter.

Have a great week!
